

THE BENEFITS OF PUBLIC POWER

Public power keeps money in the local community, helping to stimulate economic growth.

Public power is owned by the community, which means we exist to serve our customers, not stockholders.

Public power is not-for-profit, meaning our goal is to provide the highest level of service at the lowest possible price.

Public power rates are locally controlled, meaning that customers have a real say.

Public power workers are friends, family and neighbors, which means we care about ensuring reliable, quality service.

Public power is part of the community, which means we are vested in being good environmental stewards.
